Musculoskeletal Medicine For The GP

40 Point* RACGP Category 1 QI & CPD Course

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Musculoskeletal conditions accounted for 15.4% of GP encounters in 2009-2010, which represents the third most common reason for presentation in GP practice. They are responsible for a major burden in the Australian health system, affecting around 28% of the population – more than six million Australians.

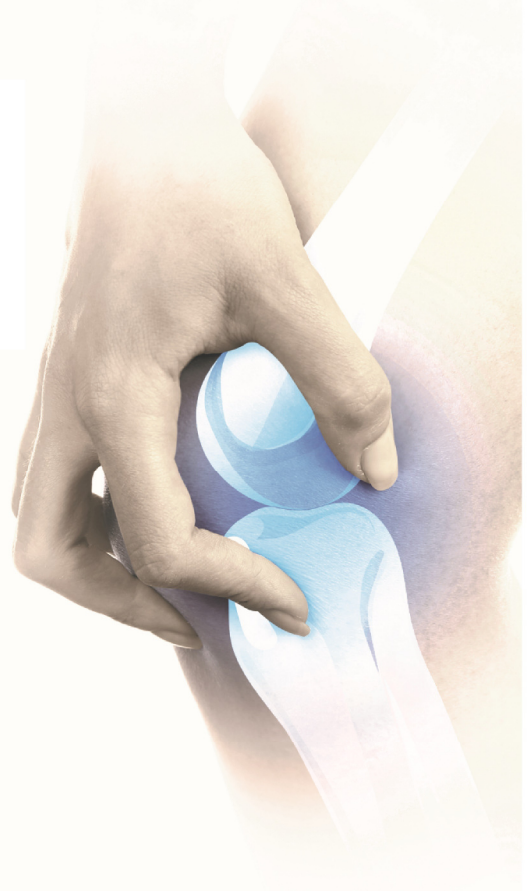

In this Category 1 QI & CPD course we look at some of the most common musculoskeletal conditions that present to General Practitioners. We will provide an update of the most recent literature; review how to gain an effective history and perform physical examinations; explore the principles of surgical and non-surgical management; outline effective referral pathways and discuss the key criteria that favour's a positive prognosis.
